

TWU Local 100 President, Tony Utano with members at the NYC Hometown Heroes Ticker Tape Parade

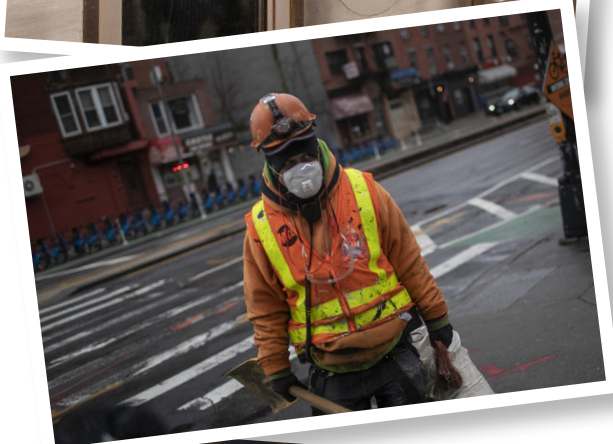

Transit workers were cheered for their pandemic service by many thousands of New Yorkers that lined Broadway for the Hometown Heroes Ticker Tape Parade Wednesday, July 7, 2021.

Even if you could not be there in person, every clap and cheer that echoed in the Canyon of Heroes when transit workers carried the TWU Local 100 banner along the route was for YOU.

You kept New York moving – and fighting – through the pandemic, and you deserve the city’s thanks and praise.

The mayor’s office set strict limits on the number of participants unions, city agencies, and other organizations could bring. Local 100 was granted 25 marchers. Several dozen other members were assigned to ride a vintage MTA subway car, an electric bus with the windows removed, or the city’s Transportation theme float.

TWU Local 100 participated to honor our fallen brothers and sisters; to make a very public demand for Hazard Pay; and to highlight your service and sacrifice.

WE MOVE NEW YORK!
