Attention CUNY Students!

Why should NYU Get This MTA Real Estate Give-Away?

This is the building that the MTA left abandoned in downtown Brooklyn. Yet 370 Jay Street is structurally sound. The City and the MTA are set to gift it to NYU, a multi-billion dollar real estate entity and private, for-profit university. It's an insult to the riding public, to CUNY students, who see no such largesse, and to transit riders who will pay for it.

Why walk away from 370 Jay? The MTA has spent $600 million just to renovate 2 Broadway, an office tower it doesn't even own in downtown Manhattan. Rental/Operating costs are $63 million a year. Yet, 370 Jay is free to the MTA! Right now, a power play is going on: NYU is slated to get 370 Jay and figures it will take just $100 million to create a beautiful new campus.

At www.mtamoneythrowaway.com, we are exposing the ways in which the MTA is wasting literally billions of dollars. Visit the site to see where your fare increase is REALLY ending up.

AT THE HEART OF THE GIVEAWAY: NYU's drawings (above) show a beautifully renovated building — a state-of-the-art campus. What's behind this real estate giveaway that will force fares to rise?
